SHIP'S GRIST OF STOWAWAYS.

ONE OF THEM JUMPS INTO THE BAY TO AVOID RETURN HOME.

The Sicilian Prince Puts Off Thirteen of 'Em at Palermo and Discovers Nine on the Way Over—Tenth Pops Out of Lifeboat—He Fights and Hides Well.

The Italian steamship Sicilian Prince, out sixteen days from Naples and Palermo, brought in ten stowaways yesterday, and two of them made trouble for the immigration inspectors.

When the inspector examined the boat at Quarantine, he found awaiting him nine stowaways who had been discovered by the ship's officers. Thirteen others had been put off at Palermo. The inspector had to go to see the captain of the Sicilian Prince, and on the way he passed a lifeboat covered with canvas. The prince was cautiously pulled back and up popped a head belonging to a young man about 20 years old, who said he had got on the boat at Naples and had stayed in the lifeboat during the entire trip.

He refused to say how he had enjoyed the voyage and, as he was well-fed and apparently in good condition, the inspector concluded that he must have had a comfortable time on board who supplied him with food. He made the tenth stowaway.

Just as the Sicilian Prince got to her dock at the foot of Forty-third street, South Brooklyn, one of the stowaways jumped on the barge which takes the immigrants to Ellis Island, and then hopped off into the water. He swam under the pier and was looking for a way of escape when a boat which had been put out from the dock picked him up and brought him back to the ship.

The excitement over this attempted escape subsided with the moving of the immigrants who were to go to Ellis Island to the barge. The barge was almost ready to start for the island when the lifeboat stowaway made a dash off the barge and jumped on the tug which tows it to Ellis Island. Two deckhands on the tugboat grabbed him, but he put up a good fight and it was some time before he was subdued. Several times during the scuffle he made a motion as if to draw a weapon, but when he was searched none was found on him. The stowaway didn't stop struggling until the inspector told him that he would have to go to Ellis Island anyway and that he would only make his case worse by fighting.

When the barge arrived at Ellis Island the inspector looked for the belligerent stowaway, but couldn't find him. A further search was instituted, but it had not been reported up to a late hour last night whether the missing stowaway had been found. A steamship company which lets a stowaway escape has to pay a fine of $500.

DILLON AND LIQUOR DEALERS.

Accused Captain Says He Wouldn't Let Up on Them and Never Got a Cent.

Assistant District Attorney Lord, who is prosecuting Police Captain James Dillon of the West Forty-seventh street station before Deputy Commissioner Davis, for neglect of duty in failing to enforce the Liquor Tax law, subjected the captain to a severe cross-examination yesterday morning.

He asked the captain, among other things, whether he had ever had a conversation with an officer of the Liquor Dealers' Association relative to closing saloons during prohibited hours. Dillon replied that he had. On the day he took command of the precinct, he said, an officer of the association visited the station house and asked him what his policy toward the liquor dealers would be.

"I told him," continued the witness, "that I didn't know anything about a policy; that I was there to enforce the law, and intended to do it to the best of my ability."

"After I was suspended on these charges, I met the same official and two members of his association by appointment. The liquor men said they were very sorry I had got into trouble and they wanted to help me."

"Had they offered you any money?" asked Mr. Lord.

"No, but on one occasion the official came into my office and said, 'Captain, I want to see you in my office confidentially. I said: 'You may; but if you start to talk money to me, I'll throw you through the window.' He replied: 'Nothing of the sort. I want to see if you can't let us a bit on us.' There'll be no letting up," I said."

"While you were in command of that precinct did you ever receive any money as a consideration for not enforcing the law?" asked Mr. Lord.

"I never have since I have been a police officer. That's on my word as a man and a gentleman, as well as on my oath," replied Dillon.

"Do you know whether any of your subordinates did?" asked ex-Judge Warren, his counsel.

"No, and I had been aware of such a thing I would have prosecuted the person, even if he was my own brother."

The trial was adjourned until next Friday afternoon. After the adjournment ex-Judge Warren said:

"Mr. Lord, I want to ask you, in the presence of the Commissioner, whether there has been any intimation received by you that any one in that precinct was receiving money. If so, I want you to produce the man, and if the District Attorney does not prosecute them I will."

"I will finish the case as best I can," was the answer.

DEVERY CALLED 'EM NAMES.

ONE REASON WHY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE REJECTS HIM.

Plea of the Big Bug (as He Calls Himself) for a Write to Break Into Tammany Meets With Resistance Before Justice McCall, Who Thinks There's Merit in It.

Big Bug Bill Devery's personal fight for recognition as a member of the Tammany Hall Executive Committee got in court yesterday when his counsel, J. M. Proskauer, asked Supreme Court Justice McCall for a mandamus directing the Executive Committee to accept the Bug Candidate for Mayor as one of its members.

The return to Devery's application made by the Executive Committee says that "the said William S. Devery has made improper and indecent attacks upon various members of the Executive Committee of the Democratic General Committee of the county of New York, and for that, among other reasons, the committee would not consent to place him upon its Executive Committee, but, on the contrary, did, pursuant to the rules and regulations of the committee, place upon it John Noonan, who was duly elected a member of the Democratic General Committee from the Ninth Assembly district."

The return goes on to say that Devery's application is not made in good faith, but "in order that he might be permitted to disturb the councils and prevent the committee from giving the deliberation to such matters that should come before it as the matters were entitled to, and for the purpose of creating dissatisfaction and disrupting the same." His appointment to the committee, it is declared, would be a great detriment, as he is accused of having used "vile and abusive epithets" about the various members, and of having given interviews in which he used such epithets "so as to hold the committee up to ridicule and disrespect."

Besides the reason that Devery had called the committee members names, Lawyer Steuer added another one, namely that since Devery had first sought recognition as a member of the committee had been selected, in accordance with the rules of the General Committee and the Primary Law, Devery therefore could not get a writ to put him on a committee which had come out of existence. Mr. Steuer also disputed the validity of Devery's election as a member of the County Executive Committee.

Justice McCall reserved decision, but remarked that he would certainly have followed Justice Leventritt's decision in favor of Devery if Mr. Garcan case had the higher courts not overruled it.

MUST PROTECT MINORITY, TOO.

Says the Court, of Directors, in the Universal Tobacco Case.

In the argument made yesterday before Vice-Chancellor Pitney in Newark, N. J., for the appointment of a receiver for the Universal Tobacco Company, the decision of the United States Court of Appeals in the Hodges suit against the United States Steel Corporation was quoted. R. H. McCarter of counsel for the tobacco company said that the opinion of that court was unanimous that directors of a corporation who were majority stockholders had the undoubted right to protect their own interests without consideration of the minority.

"Does the Court say that?" thundered Vice-Chancellor Pitney. "If it does, I think it is an outrage. No court ought to hold up its head which decides that directors are not bound to vote in the interest of all the stockholders, the minority as well as the majority. I don't agree with that decision and I say so right here."

"If your honor's rule of morals were general," remarked W. Bourke Cockran, also of counsel for the company, "there would be no panics in Wall Street."

Holland House Head Walter Robbed.

Prosper P. Reiter, head waiter at the Holland House, put an advertisement in some of the newspapers, yesterday, hoping that he would be able to get trace of $500 worth of jewelry and silverware which thieves carried off from his apartments on the top floor of 137 West 118th street on Monday last, while he and his family were in Coney Island. Most of the silverware consisted of wedding presents.
